TIDBITS® CELEBRATES
THE GRAMMY AWARDS
by Kathy Wolfe

The 2020 Grammy Awards are scheduled for January 26, and Tidbits is gathering the facts on this event honoring achievements in the music industry.

- The name for the award has its origins in the old phonograph known as the gramophone. The award was actually called the Gramophone Award at first. Inventor Emile Berliner received U.S. patent #372,786 in November of 1887 for a device that recorded four minutes of sound on an 11-inch (28 cm) glass disc at 30 rpm. He established the United States Gramophone Company in 1893, and by the following year had sold 1,000 machines and 25,000 records, discs that sold for 60 cents each.
- The Grammy Award trophy is a miniature gilded gramophone. The trophies are hand-made and assembled by Billings Artworks in Ridgway, Colorado. Owner John Billings was 12 years old and living two houses away from the original Grammy trophy mold-maker, Bob Graves, when he observed the creation of the first trophy in Graves' garage in 1958. Billings began a seven-year apprenticeship with Graves in 1976, and upon Graves' death in 1983, Billings bought the business.

- John Billings devised a custom zinc alloy he called grammium, of which he uses about 6,000 lbs. (2,721 kg) a year to create the Grammys. It takes about 15 hours to produce each of the five-pound (2.27 kg) awards in Billings' 2,000-square-foot studio. Each award is cast from three different molds – the base, the gramophone cabinet, and the tone arm. After casting, the cabinet and arm are plated in 24-karat gold.
- The trophy that each artist receives at the televised broadcast is actually a “stunt” Grammy that is re-used each year. Because the winners aren't known at the time of production, after the announcement of the winners, Billings and his crew engrave the brass plates (including a unique serial number for authenticity), and affix to the base of the actual trophies. The awards are then boxed and personally hand-delivered to Los Angeles by John Billings.
- The first Awards ceremony was held in 1959, recognizing performers from 1958 in 28 different categories. The big winners that year with three awards apiece were Ella Fitzgerald and Ross Bagdasarian. Bagdasarian, also known as David Seville, was the creator of Alvin & The Chipmunks, who captured those awards for “Christmas, Don't Be Late.” Other winners included Frank Sinatra, Perry Como, Peggy Lee, and Count Basie.
- The second Awards ceremony was the first to be presented on television, although not as a live program. In fact, the Grammys were not aired live until 1971. Bobby Darin was the Best New Artist of 1959 at the second ceremony, as well as winning Record of the Year with “Mack the Knife.” Frank

1. Who won Record of the Year in 1992 with “Tears in Heaven”?
2. In 1989, DJ Jazzy Jeff and The Fresh Prince were the first Grammy winners for a Rap Performance. Who is Fresh Prince?
3. What duo performed the 1980 Grammy-nominated song “You Don't Bring Me Flowers”?
4. In 1986, Whitney won her first Grammy for Best Female Pop Performance. Name the song.
5. Name the concert pianist with 25 Grammy Awards, with awards won in every decade from the 1960s to the 1990s.

Sinatra took Album of the Year. Ray Charles was the big winner the following year, collecting four awards.

- Every year, the Recording Academy receives more than 20,000 entries to be considered for a Grammy. If a recording meets all of the eligibility requirements, it is then voted on by the Academy's voting members, with those votes resulting in the nominations. Voting members must not be swayed by the entry's success on the charts, sales, or personal friendships. Voters are those who have been credited on at least six commercially-released tracks, and include vocalists, conductors, songwriters, composers, producers, arrangers, and others involved in a release. Media companies are not allowed to vote.
- From the initial 28 awards, the total has grown

- * Mayonnaise can stand in for cooking oil in a recipe. Use in an equal amount. It works especially well in brownies.
 - * “When flossing, cut a length of floss, then tie the loose ends together. Now you have a circle and can hold it open with your fingers rather than wrapping the loose ends around your fingers and cutting off the circulation. All it takes is a little tension on the circle to keep the line taut.” -- C.E.
 - * “If you have to wash dishes by hand, here's a tip for rinsing utensils: Clean silverware together and toss into a colander. Then you can rinse the whole thing together instead of each fork, knife or spoon. This will save time, and water.” -- M.V.

- * Apply car wax to shower walls to keep soap scum from hanging around. Petroleum jelly can be used in shower-door tracks to lubricate them, since it won't wash away easily.
- * “I like to use metal cans for storage in my shop. To make them safer, I file the rims and dip them in a shallow disk of melted wax. When the wax hardens, it fills in all the potential jagged edges that might lead to a small cut.” -- F.J.
- * Here's a fun plumbing trick: Use a wad of soft white bread (centers only) to plug up a pipe you are working on. The bread disintegrates quickly but will stop up any trickle of water long enough for you to seal two pipes together.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was nonviolent Indian activist Mahatma Gandhi who made the following sage observation: "First they ignore you, then they laugh at you, then they fight you, then you win."

* In 1905, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author of the Sherlock Holmes stories, became one of the first people ever to be fined for speeding.

* Appropriately, the patron saint of bankers is St. Meingold.

* Ever wonder how BVDs came to be called that? From the names of the men who originally manufactured them: Bradley, Voorhies and Day.

* Less than half the people in the world use a spoon, fork and knife to eat. The rest use chopsticks, just a knife or their hands.

* In Babylon 4,000 years ago, it was accepted practice that for a month after the wedding, the bride's father would supply his son-in-law with all the mead he could drink. Mead is a honey beer, and so that time became known as the honey month -- what we know today as the honeymoon.

* People who pick chili peppers in Costa Rica have to wear special suits to avoid getting blisters just from coming into contact with them.

* The Pledge of Allegiance was published in 1892 in celebration of the 400th anniversary of Columbus' voyage to the New World. It didn't contain the words "under God," though, until 1954, when they were added by an act of Congress in an attempt to check the creeping advance of "Godless Communism."

Record of the Year, Album of the Year, Song of the Year, and Best New Artist. Only one performer in Grammy history has captured the Big Four in a single year, Christopher Cross, who accomplished the feat in 1981. The singer Adele has also won the Big Four, although not in same year.

- There's a difference between Record of the Year and Song of the Year. Record of the Year recognizes the artist, the producer, recording engineers, and sound mixers, while Song of the Year honors the songwriter.
- You've probably never heard of the Grammy record-holder with the most awards. Nominated 74 times, Sir Georg Solti, who was conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for 22 years, won 31 Grammys, more than any other recording artist in any category. Jazz legend Quincy Jones has had more nominations than any other artist, with 80, winning 28 of those awards.
- The honor of the most Grammys by a female artist belongs to bluegrass singer and fiddler Alison Krauss, who has captured 27 awards from her 42 nominations. Her first award was in 1990 for the Best Bluegrass Recording for "I've Got That Old Feeling," but perhaps her best-known achievement was her music for the 2000 film O Brother, Where Art Thou?, which earned the Album of the Year.
- In 1984, Michael Jackson set a record for the most wins in a single night, with eight trophies, knocking out the previous record-holder, Paul Simon, who had seven wins in 1971. The group Santana tied Jackson's record in 2000. Only eight artists have won six or more Grammys in one night, including Adele, Eric Clapton, and Beyonce.

- Stevland Hardaway Judkins, better known as Stevie Wonder, won 14 Grammy Awards between 1974 and 1977. His total to date is 25 wins from 74 nominations. Wonder is one of just three artists in Grammy history to have won Album of the Year three times. The other two are Paul Simon and Frank Sinatra.
- In 1990, the duo Milli Vanilli became the first artists to be stripped of their Grammys. Fab Morvan and Rob Pilatus had achieved international fame for their 1989 album "Girl, You Know It's True," and were awarded the Grammy for Best New Artist. However, it was soon learned that the pair did not sing any of the vocals on the recordings. They did attempt a comeback as Rob & Fab, but after the scandal, success was hard to find.
- Although Elvis was the king of rock and roll and was nominated several times in that category, he never received a Grammy for that genre. He was awarded three Grammys for his gospel music in 1967, 1972, and 1974. Elvis never attended a Grammy Awards ceremony.

Homestyle Meatloaf

Meatloaf is as comforting as food gets. If you agree, then take comfort in this easy homestyle recipe.

- 16 ounces extra-lean ground sirloin or turkey breast
- 1/2 cup plus 1 tablespoon dried fine breadcrumbs
- 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 teaspoons dried parsley flakes
- 2 tablespoons reduced-sodium ketchup
- 1 (12-ounce) jar fat-free beef gravy

1. Heat oven to 350 F. Spray a 9-by-5-inch loaf pan with butter-flavored cooking spray. In a large bowl, combine meat, breadcrumbs, celery, onion, parsley flakes, ketchup and 1/4 cup beef gravy. Mix well to combine. Pat mixture into prepared loaf pan.
2. Bake for 45 minutes. Evenly spoon remaining gravy over meatloaf. Continue baking for 15 minutes. Place loaf pan on a wire rack and let set for 5 minutes. Divide into 6 servings.

* Each serving equals: About 167 calories, 7g fat, 15g protein, 11g carb., 531 mg sodium, 1g fiber; Diabetic Exchanges: 2 Meat, 1 Starch.

MOVIE FAVORITES: SNOW WHITE

Heigh-ho, heigh-ho! It's time for Tidbits to remember the 1937 classic, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

- The idea for Snow White was planted in Walt Disney's brain when he was just a 15-year-old Kansas City newsboy. In 1916, the youth viewed a short silent film version of the story and visualized it on the big screen. When Disney's film was released in 1937, it was the first full-length animated feature film produced in America, as well as the first produced in full color.
- With an original budget of $250,000, the projected total was ten times that of the budget of Disney's Silly Symphonies shorts. Disney was ridiculed for believing it could be successful, and even his wife was unsupportive. Walt mortgaged his house to pay for the movie, which, in the end, exceeded $1.4 million. But his gamble proved to be a good one, as the film held the title of highest-grossing film for a year, before it was displaced by Gone with the Wind. Snow White does continue to be the highest-grossing animated film, adjusted for inflation. Walt used the profits to buy 51 acres of land to build Disney Studios, still in use today.
- It took about three years for 750 artists to create the more than 2 million sketches that went into the movie. Walt Disney was adamant about realistic forest creatures, and brought live animals into the studio for the artists to study.
- Lucille LaVerne was chosen to voice the Wicked Queen, but during production, was told by the animators that they needed an older, raspier voice for the Old Witch. Lucille left the recording booth momentarily and when she returned, the voice of the witch was perfect. How did she do it? She took her teeth out!
- Adriana Caselotti, the voice of Snow White, received $970 for her work (about $17,000 in today's dollars). Because Disney wanted to keep the character's voice special and unique, Caselotti's contract restricted the 19-year-old from ever acting in films again. Because she was a classically-trained singer, she went into the field of opera. She did, however, continue to voice Snow White on several occasions, including a recording for the wishing well at Disneyland when she was 75 years old.
- The mystical voice of the Magic Mirror was achieved by the voice actor, Moroni Olsen, speaking his lines wearing a box frame covered with old drum heads over his head. The voices of both Grumpy and Sleepy were provided by Pinto Colvig, who also voiced Pluto and Goofy in other Disney productions, as well as Bozo the Clown.
- Twenty-five songs were written for the film, but that number was whittled down to just eight. The movie was nominated for Best Musical Score at the 1938 Academy Awards.
- Can you name the seven little men? They were Grumpy, Sneezzy, Sleepy, Doc, Dopey, Bashful, and Happy. However, there were at least 50 other names suggested during the initial phase, including Blabby, Gaspzy, Crabby, Flabby, Scruppy,

- Who composed and performed "Your Song" in 1970?
- Which group wrote and released "Heartache Tonight"?
- Who released "Pick Up the Pieces"?
- What is "409" in the 1962 Beach Boys song?
- Name the song that contains this lyric: "Waiting for the break of day, Searching for something to say, Flashing lights against the sky, Giving up I close my eyes."

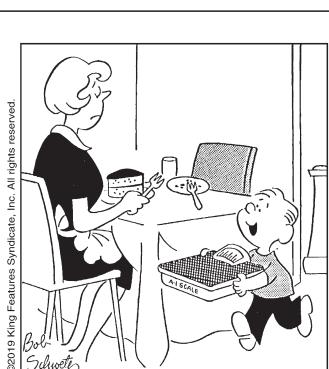

Answers

- Elton John. It was released as a b-side single to "Take Me to the Pilot," but DJs liked "Your Song" better and made that the a-side. It was his first big hit in the U.K.
- The Eagles, in 1979. The song received a Grammy Award for Best Rock Performance by a Duo or Group with Vocal.
- The Average White Band, in 1974. It didn't chart in the U.K. until American DJs started to play it and it soared to the top of the U.S. charts.
- A 409 cubic-inch Chevrolet engine.
- "25 or 6 to 4," by Chicago in 1970. It's about being up in the middle of the night trying to write a song. Said this way, "Twenty-five or (twenty-) six to four," the meaning becomes clearer. It's about the time the song jelled and came together.

(c) 2020 King Features Synd., Inc.

Sniffy, Biggy-Wiggy, and Wheezy. At the last minute, Sneezzy was selected over Deefy.

- The original plan for the silent Dopey was for him to be a gabby little dwarf with the voice of Mel Blanc, but the producers had trouble finding a voice that seemed quite right. To avoid what they deemed wrong, Dopey became the silent one. Dopey's slow footsteps on a creaky floor were created by Walt's brother, Roy, who slowly bent a leather wallet back and forth.
- Although Snow White ends up with Prince Charming, she never interacts with him in the movie, in fact, never even talks to him. The Prince is only seen a little bit more than two minutes in the entire film.

"Hey Mom, maybe you'd reconsider letting me have your _____ if you'd stand on this for a second."

PAW'S CORNER By Sam Mazzotta

Expert: CBD Oil Could Damage Pets' Eyes

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Your recent article about giving CBD oil to pets omitted an important factor: its effect on the eyes. Past research has shown that CBD causes eye pressure to spike in humans, and the same issue was noted in a study with rodents. Popular media has not noted this. CBD oil should be given to pets only with appropriate oversight from an animal specialist able to measure eye pressure. -- Dr. Denise Valenti

DEAR DR. VALENTI: Thank you for the update. I had not seen the research on this, and it is important for pet owners to know about this possible side effect of CBD (cannabidiol). A 2006 study at the University of Aberdeen of human glaucoma patients found that a fairly high dose, 40 mg of CBD oil, administered sublingually (under the tongue) caused a temporary rise in intraocular pressure. (A lower dose, 20 mg, did not cause the same problem.) And a more recent study at Indiana University found that mice given CBD oil experienced a similar rise in interocular pressure. The study found that when THC and CBD were given together, the THC blocked CBD's effects on eye pressure -- but because THC also IS the component of marijuana that makes a person (or pet) high, it opens a whole other kettle of fish. If you're currently giving your pet CBD oil, contact your veterinarian to ask about checking and monitoring your pet's eye pressure. High interocular pressure can cause serious damage to the eyes. If your dog or cat has glaucoma, avoid administering CBD oil until you've talked to the vet about all possible side effects.

Beautiful Smudge came to us 6 months after her human had passed away. Unfortunately there was no one to properly care for her when her human passed and so she arrived having had only the basic necessities for those months. Smudge was very scared of us and her new surroundings but she has since settled in well and is now a loving, happy girl. She greets us every morning with chirps and head bunts and her favorite place to hang out is in her bed. Smudge has been to the vet for a check up and although she has some senior related things happening, she has the all clear to be adopted into a loving home. Smudge seems more relaxed without other animals in her space, so if she was the only cat in the home that would be great. Smudge has been strictly indoors only for her whole life so that is a definite must for her going forward. If you think you could love Smudge please come and meet her
